UIPM 2018 PENTATHLON WORLD CHAMPIONSHIPS: HOW TO WATCH THE ACTION

Global television viewers on a record number of networks will have the opportunity to watch Modern Pentathlon's flagship annual competition when the UIPM 2018 Pentathlon World Championships take place in Mexico City (MEX) this week.

The 2018 championships will run from September 6-13, with 21 medals on offer to the best pentathletes and pentathlon teams on the planet.

On September 9, during the Mixed Relay, UIPM's global community will have the opportunity to come together on all UIPM social platforms to celebrate the 1st Pierre de Coubertin Pentathlon Day (#PentathlonDay).

PA record total of 24 networks have signed up to broadcast live (or "as live") coverage of the 2018 Pentathlon World Championships, resulting in a record 92 hours of live broadcasting time, reaching a potential 396 million homes.

Globally, highlights will be available on the Olympic Channel while major sports broadcasters such as L'Equipe (France), BBC and Sky Sports (UK), Fox Sports (Australia / Asia) and CCTV (China) have once again secured the rights.

Many of the networks will also broadcast the action online, where will be a live stream of the Mixed Relay and the Women's and Men's Individual Finals on UIPM TV with up-to-date results available at the UIPM website throughout the championships.
